Loading bay moved day before scaffold collapse

BY ALICIA BABAEE
alicia.babaee@mk-news.co.uk

A VITAL piece of equipment was removed from the scaffolding structure at Jurys Inn the day before it collapsed, an inquest has heard.

Evidence suggests that a loading bay was taken down before it was finished with in order for other work to continue.

Carpenter John Robinson, who was on the scaffolding when it crashed to the ground on April 11, 2006, died in hospital three days later.

Yesterday a solicitor said evidence yet to be heard by the inquest would suggest substantial parts of scaffolding were missing.

Mr Robinson, 49, from Condor Close, Eaglestone, suffered broken ribs, lacerations to his left thigh and eye, and abrasions to his calf.

His injuries were not considered to be life-threatening but he died suddenly from a blood clot on April 14.

Witnesses described how the moveable loading bay, designed to lift heavy pallets of cladding tiles onto the 19 levels of scaffolding, was taken down by North Notts Scaffolding on April 10 on the instruction of main contractor McAleer and Rush.

Tiles had not yet been delivered to the 17th, 18th and 19th levels.

Previously two pallets, weighing 1,200 kilos, the equivalent of 60 holiday suitcases, had been lowered onto the scaffolding every two days but the dismantling of the loading bay changed the working method.

Patrick McClory, one of two site managers working for McAleer and Rush, admitted that he had not read all the safety documentation provided by subcontractors.

The Northern Ireland resident was due to take over from another site manager who was emigrating to Australia. They were both working on the site at the time of the collapse.

Mr Weston, representing Mr Robinson's employer Lee Smith Carpentry Ltd, suggested that the loading bay was taken away early due to an appointment for utilities companies to connect the building to electricity and gas. They could not do this while the loading bay was still in place.

Mr McClory said: "There was an abundance of works to be done at low level."

When asked if he had read all the documentation and weekly scaffolding reports Mr McClory said: "It was at an advanced stage.

"It was an ongoing process. I was reading through various method statements."

He could not recall finding complete records of weekly scaffolding inspections following the departure of his colleague and said he was not aware that adding extra pallets would cause problems.

Mr Robinson's son, Mark Robinson, and another worker, were taken to hospital but they survived.

Witnesses described hearing a 'rumble' as they saw the structure topple to the floor.

Andrew Salter who was working on a nearby site said: "It was like watching something in the movies, it was surreal, it was like thunder."

Other witnesses described the weather that day as 'horrendous'.

A truck driver dived under the cab of his vehicle for protection as the scaffolding came down.

John Scurr, a vascular surgeon, complimented staff at Milton Keynes General Hospital for recognising that Mr Robinson was at risk of a blood clot and dealing with it in the best way possible considering his injuries.

He said: "He suffered a sudden, massive, pulmonary embolism."

Home Office pathologist Dr Ken Shorrock said: "He would not have died when he did had he not been involved in the accident."

The inquest could last up to two weeks.

Pilot Mustafa Aolad who will whisk away Kanti Majithia and Sarla Pabari to wed in a Dakota aircraft

Hindu marriage is 'made in heaven'

BY ROB GIBSON
rob.gibson@mk-news.co.uk

A COUPLE will tie the knot in style when they marry in an aeroplane 2,000 feet above Milton Keynes.

Kanti Majithia, 66, will marry Sarla Pabari, who lives in Bletchley, during a Hindu wedding ceremony as they fly over the city on Saturday, January 26.

Around 30 guests will board a Douglas Dakota DC-3 to witness the couple exchange their oaths mid-flight.

Mr Majithia said: "It was my idea. I thought it would be something different; something new.

"It's very exciting."

According to the pilot, Mustafa Aolad, the event will recreate a scene from the 1964 Bollywood blockbuster Sangam, capturing the golden age of aviation and the romance of the bygone era.

In the morning the bride and groom will arrive at Jaipur Indian restaurant in the city centre, where they will share a traditional Indian breakfast with guests, followed by a hot cup of cha.

After breakfast the congregation will travel in a fleet of white stretch limousines to the register office in Bletchley for the formal ceremony.

A Rolls Royce will then whisk the couple, with their entourage in tow, towards Cranfield Airport where the flight crew will be waiting. A priest will bless the plane before it takes off, escorted by a World War Two Spitfire fighter.

The planes will fly over Milton Keynes before passing over the groom's home in Leicester and returning within half-an-hour.

Organiser and master of ceremonies, Jay Pabari, said: "It's totally remarkable because of their age but they're both very young at heart.

"They've both lost partners over the last four or five years and their friendship has grown – everybody needs a partner.

"They're a very happy couple."

Once back on terra firma the couple will return to the Jaipur for a reception,with 150 guests.

MP speaks out on rail chaos

HEAVY disruption on rail lines that caused chaos for commuters during the first few days of the new year led to a debate in the House of Commons last night.

The disruption was caused by engineering works being carried out by Network Rail on the west coast main line at Rugby in Warwickshire taking longer than expected, it meant knock on effects for MK travellers.

The issue was to be discussed during an Opposition Day in the House of Commons last night (Tuesday, January 8).

MP for North East Milton Keynes, Mark Lancaster, was set to highlight local commuters' concerns.

"Yet again last week we saw how it was the poor Milton Keynes commuter that suffered the brunt of both the Government's and Network Rail's incompetence," said Mr Lancaster yesterday.

"Having campaigned long and hard for 'I before E' or infrastructure before expansion' a key element must be a reliable rail service for Milton Keynes residents, something that seems far from certain at the moment."

Mr Lancaster added that he has written to the chief executive of Network Rail asking when the further engineering works planned for Milton Keynes are due to take place and, to seek his assurance that they will be completed with the minimum of interference to local commuters.

Burglary boys given 'last chance'

TWO boys have been offered their 'last chance' after magistrates spared them a prison sentence for burglary and criminal damage.

The youths, both from Milton Keynes, are aged 15 and 16 but cannot be named for legal reasons. They appeared with their parents at Milton Keynes Youth Court yesterday.

Both defendants pleaded guilty to entering a garage and shed in Daniels Welch, Coffee Hall, on July 31 last year, and stealing cases of drink.

The teenagers also admitted causing criminal damage on November 12, when they broke a garden fence and verbally abused the elderly owner.

Taking into account their previous convictions, chairman of the bench, Leslie Geddes, said: "There was a very good chance of both of you going into custody.

"You are right on the edge of going inside."

The 15-year-old was convicted last year for a string of offences including racially aggravated common assault. Last April a Muslim woman was racially abused and spat on in a city underpass. DNA obtained from spit on her headscarf identified the 15-year-old.

Yesterday he was sentenced to a two-year supervision order, ordered to pay costs of £60 and £160 compensation.

Ms Geddes said: "These are serious offences and you are extremely lucky not to go into custody.

"This is your last chance today.

"We expect you not to commit any more offences."

The 16-year-old was given a nine-month curfew order, which means he will be electronically tagged and must stay indoors from 8pm to 7am.

He was ordered to pay costs of £60 and £70 compensation.

On-line tributes to dead marine

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-news.co.uk

A TWENTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD marine from Milton Keynes has died while on leave in Portsmouth.

Tributes from friends and family to Second Lieutenant Neville Antony Lockwood, who died on Friday, December 21, have flooded in to a group set up on the social networking website Facebook.

The circumstances of his death are not yet clear and an inquest was opened by the Portsmouth and South East Hampshire coroner, on Wednesday January 2.

Second Lt Lockwood, from The High Street, Two Mile Ash, had started his officer's training at a base in Lympstone, Devon in September 2007.

He joined the Royal Marine reserves in London in November 2006 after graduating from Plymouth University in 2003.

On the website, friends said he was 'finally doing the job he had always dreamed of and was so very happy doing it'.

They also speak of his cracking sense of humour, his pranks and his love of rugby and underwater hockey, known as octopush.

One friend said he was universally loved and admired. The tragic loss of a life that touched so many people is overwhelming.

Second Lt Lockwood lived in Two Mile Ash from the age of four and attended Two Mile Ash Middle School and Denbigh School in Shenley Church End.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Defence said: "We can confirm that a Royal Marine officer died in Portsmouth on December 21 2007.

"His next of kin have been informed.

"The thoughts and sympathies of the Royal Navy and the Royal Marines are with his family at this difficult time."

The inquest has been adjourned for several months.

Second Lt Lockwood's funeral will be held at The Church of the Holy Cross, High Street, Two Mile Ash on Monday January 14 at 12pm.

He will be buried with his father's ashes interred with him at New Bradwell Cemetery.

Under age smokers are buying cigarettes from pub machines

NEARLY 80 per cent of pubs visited in a recent undercover operation by trading standards officers in Milton Keynes allowed a child to buy cigarettes from a vending machine.

The operation was organised to further highlight the need for publicans to be vigilant in making sure young people cannot easily buy cigarettes from machines on their premises.

Following the law change in October this year raising the legal age for buying cigarettes from 16 to 18, MK Council wrote to publicans with advice about how they could make sure the law is obeyed.

But in an undercover operation in December a 14-year-old boy working with trading standards officers visited 14 public houses and on 11 occasions he was able to buy cigarettes from a machine.

This was in the light of a recent study by the British Heart Foundation that found an estimated 46,000 11-15-year-olds in England and Wales buy cigarettes from vending machines – one in six of children who regularly smoke.

Trading standards officers were disappointed at how easy it had been for the child to buy cigarettes considering they had written to all pubs telling them about the best way to police their machines.

Senior trading standards officer, Allan Martin, said: "The publicity surrounding the legislation has been very thorough. In addition we provided advice and information to businesses locally.

"We will be making further investigations and contacting the businesses concerned."

Under the existing law, shopkeepers who sell cigarettes to children under 18 can be fined up to £2,500.

Recent Government research found around 450 children start smoking every day

The same research finds that 20 per cent of Britain's 15-year-olds – 16 per cent of boys and 25 per cent of girls – are regular smokers.

Hungry footballer stole mince pies

A TEENAGER told magistrates he stole two boxes of mince pies at Christmas because he was hungry.

The 15-year-old Milton Keynes boy, who can not be named for legal reasons, admitted stealing the pies along with a bottle of drink from the Budgens store in Kents Hill on December 22.

He appeared with his mother at Milton Keynes Youth Court yesterday.

Addressing the magistrates, he said: "The temptation got the better of me. I had been playing football for hours and I was hungry.

"I know it's not acceptable and I was stupid."

Police arrested the youth after he was recognised on CCTV.

He told them he did not have any money at the time to pay for the goods.

Magistrates ordered him to pay costs of £60 and compensation to the store.

He was also given a referral order for three months, meaning he must attend meetings with the Youth Offending Team.

Fare points

SIR – Your front page story on recent rise in fares brings out some interesting points.

You have stated that the cost of peak day travel before 9.30 am) return ticket from Milton Keynes to Euston has gone up from £30.90 to £37.70 which means a rise of more than 20 per cent and this is outrageous.

On the other hand you have mentioned that average price rise is 4.8 per cent. Can the train operators explain why there is a steep rise in Milton Keynes to London on one day peak travel card?

The part of the present problem dates back when the previous Conservative government destroyed the integrated railway system (British Rail) by means of privatisation. This has resulted in several companies running different parts of the rail system. A private company, Railtrack was responsible for laying rail tracks and maintenance. Maintenance is carried out even today by private companies.

Train services are operated by private operators, some of them big and some small. They are allowed to compete with each other and they can charge what they like.

Before the recent increase Virgin trains charged £150 from Milton Keynes to Birmingham during peak time and Silverlink charged less than half that.

It was unfortunate that two of the projects at Rugby and Liverpool street stations out of 35 major schemes Network Rail worked on over the Christmas and New Year period have seen over-run into the New Year.

The works at Rugby and Liverpool street themselves, in the maximum-to long-term, also bring significant benefits to passengers. It is part of the wider context of investment in Britain's railway. Network Rail being owned by the tax payers pluggin all the profits back into the system for further improvements.

Network Rail has started its own apprentice scheme to train technicians and engineers to maintenance. There is a broad consensus of the need for investment in Britain's railway.

This investment should be justified if the public are benefited by means of affordable rail fares.

This can be done by Network Rail taking over the running of train services from the private operators.

At present the shareholders of the private operators are benefited by the investment and not the general public.

Hot air and no wind

SIR – I am writing to say how devastated I was to hear of the decision regarding the Emberton Windfarm.

I understand the need for 'green' power and I know that Milton Keynes prides itself on it's green outlook.

But this windfarm is not viable due to the low levels of wind in the area. Why ruin a beautiful tract of unspoilt countryside for nothing more than a gesture towards renewable energy?

Windfarms are a good idea but why not build them in locations where they can bring true benefits?

All 15 parish councils objected to the proposal – why were the views of the rural population of Milton Keynes ignored?
Serena van der Heyde
The Barn Hardmead, Newport Pagnell

■ SIR – You've got to laugh; reading the letters page about windfarms and solar panels. I could write a diatribe on our collective stupidity.

It's like a scene from Titanic, but this time the band has been joined by most of the passengers and, as the ship sinks and it plays on, the lifeboats are surprisingly empty...

Firstly to GJ White, do some research via reputable sources on solar panels and then you would answer your own question.

The things have come on a bit since they first started powering calculators.

Secondly the wind farm debacle.

Vouerenegy is a company, existing to make a profit for shareholders and as such it is trying to sell a product. That it receives subsidies is not of your concern.

Unless it sells its product, it doesn't make profit, can't reinvest in R&D, the technology doesn't improve nor does the supply and demand factors which reduce overall prices.

So that is why I would have expected a fully independent and impartial audit to advise on the suitability of the proposed project giving the appropriate decision makers enough time to make an informed decision.

If it is then concluded the wind farm is inappropriate because of poor potential, then it should be refused, not on the basis of Nimbyism, but because it is not the best solution to our local needs.

The council would then be expected to have in place some form of overall strategy to make the area fuel and waste self sufficient, based on a thorough audit of expected energy demands and waste generated by all the new homes expected in the area.
D.Sinclair
Pennycross Way, Newport Pagnell

■ SIR – I read with interest the many letters you have published expressing both anger and dismay at the conduct of the development control committee in reaching its provocative decision to grant planning permission (for a wind farm).

It was exactly the same story when many of us in Stony Stratford, including the town council, Phyllis Starkey and Milton Keynes Council elected members, attempted to secure a planning inquiry into the inclusion of Area 11 in the local plan.

There was a persistent rebuttal by the Liberal Democrats of all well-reasoned arguments. I am afraid that their approach is one of 'they can say what they like and we will do what we like'.

I hope the electorate at the forthcoming local elections will remember this and vote accordingly

Spare that tree

SIR – It could be called 'The Chainsaw Massacre'.

The tree cutters have gone to work in Marsh Drive, Great Linford.

Little seems to have been spared from their licence of what should go.

Many fruit trees – apple, plum, pear, cherry and blackberry and rose bushes, which I have watched bear fruit year after year have all been cut down to stumps.

These would have provided habitat and food to numerous birds, squirrels and other creatures who lived in the area.

The redway which leads through Gifford Park just below Marsh Drive near France Furlong has been particularly savaged.

No doubt some cutting down was in order and a lot of the hedgerows were overgrown, but cutting back does not seem to have been their method of choice at all, more 'if any doubt, cut it out'.

The cutters seem to have been allowed by the council to chop all they want.

Driving passengers off the rails and into cars

SIR – I have just read about the further increase in rail fares affecting travellers across the country.

We are witnessing complete and utter madness whereby the cost of train travel is progressively becoming relatively more expensive each year.

The sad reality is that for most journeys across the UK it is cheaper to drive or fly, even with fuel prices at their highest for years.

However, passenger levels have grown so much that now getting a seat is hard enough – this is due to high house prices in areas such as London and the cost of the congestion charge and parking forcing people onto the trains that they don't actually like using.

One can only guess that the train companies are trying to screw as much revenue from their monopolies as possible, I am one such person who has had enough of the railways and now travel by car – I save time and money as well!

Surely this is an unsustainable situation for travellers - wages are not rising anywhere near as fast as travel, council tax, food and fuel costs.

Therefore commuters' standard of living is actually worsening each year with less and less disposable income available.

The Labour Government has had years to try and sort out this mess but it is getting worse – we need a simple, standardised fare structure across the country based on the actual distance travelled.

Nobody seems to care about passengers welfare - it is all about franchises and profits.

Labour seem to think that the answer is to try and make car travel more expensive rather than train travel cheaper.

Admittedly there is some new investment in lines but this is nowhere near enough and rail passengers need to make themselves heard – either boycott the trains or join in the nationwide protests that are being organised.

Perhaps Phyllis Starkey can spare a bit of time from worrying about nail bars to help thousands of her constituents.

Breathless in Olney: Simon Williams with the team after completing the Cardiac Arrest cross country event in Olney in November as a warm up for taking part in Tough Guy challenge later this month

Rookie runners take on 'The Killing Fields'

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-news.co.uk

A PERSONAL trainer who completed the Iron-Man triathlon last year is training up eight novices to take part in a gruelling cross country race over fear-inducing obstacles.

Simon Williams, a self-employed personal trainer from Emerson Valley, has been giving eight of his clients extra training sessions around Willen Lake to help them complete the Tough Guy competition at the end of January.

The ten mile course, on a farm in South Staffordshire, is a test of physical and mental endurance designed to take competitors beyond their limits on obstacles known as The Killing Fields.

The obstacles include crawling under barbed wire and through underwater tunnels, jumping over bales of hay that are set on fire, log climbs up to 40ft high, rope walks over stinging nettles and much more.

The group have been training together for the last five months and hope to complete the course working as a team.

They will be joined by 31-year-old trainer Simon, who took part in the race last January and completed the Iron-Man triathlon in June.

In November the team ran a cross country race at Olney, called Cardiac Arrest, in preparation for the big day on Sunday January 27.

Simon said: "They all made it round but it was nothing compared to the Tough Guy, for a start it was nowhere near as cold.

"Tough Guy is very very difficult it is all through mud and fields, sometimes the water you run through is up to your ankles and sometimes it is up to your neck.

"They say however long it would take you to run 10 miles you should double it for Tough Guy.

"It is a proper SAS military-style hard-core race."

"It is one of those things that you get a phenomenal sense of achievement at the end."

The eldest of the team is 45-year-old Liz Carrighan from Bilbrook, Furzton, who has run several marathons but has never taken part in an event like Tough Guy.

"I thought I would like to try a new challenge," she said.

"I would never have done this on my own, but I think we are a good team - we have all said we will get each other round. There is a lot of team camaraderie. We are not going to win it, we are just going to have fun and get round there and raise money for charity."

She said the most daunting obstacle is likely to be the under water tunnel.

"Also it is the end of January and we are going to be getting very wet so the cold is going to be a real, real challenge for me."

Entries for the Tough Guy event raise money for a horse sanctuary in Tattenhall, South Staffordshire.

The rest of the team include Lou Atkinson, 32, from Great Holm, Andy Bell, 44, from Newton Longville, Olly Tomlinson, 20, from Cranfield, Amy Ball, 28, from Deanshanger, Jon Rainford, 25, from Broughton, Russell Brazier, 25, from Central Milton Keynes and Aleck Holshaw, 34, from Loughton.

Simon Willams' Boot Camp, set up in September, has been so successful that he will be running an additional Saturday session from January 12. The camp will run from 10am and meets at Fitness First Gym in the Theatre District. To register or for further details, pick up a form from the gym, call Simon on 07900 880 122 or e-mail info@activlifitnessmk.co.uk

Found dead: Carl Bere

Hit-and-run charge man bailed

A MAN has appeared in court charged in connection with the death of hit-and-run victim Carl Bere.

Hasnath Chaudhury, 41, of Westbourne Road, Luton, allegedly failed to stop at the scene of the incident on September 30 last year.

Mr Bere, 28, from Bletchley was found dead by another driver by the side of the A5 Southbound between Redmoor and Caldecotte.

Mr Chaudhury appeared at Milton Keynes' Magistrates' Court on Friday, charged with being the driver of a Vauxhall Vectra which failed to stop when Mr Bere was injured.

He is also charged with having no insurance and failing to report the incident to the police.

The case was adjourned for a week and the defendant was granted unconditional bail.

Housing office a waste of 'scarce resources'

SIR – The intemperate personal attack and deliberately misleading statements from Margaret Burke (Letters, January 4) leave me no option but to set the record straight.

It is perfectly understandable that SOME residents of Bradville, and Margaret is one of them, would like the Bradville Housing Office to remain open.

But tenants from Greenleys, Conniburrow, etc. do not find its location useful.

The evidence is there for all to see – people are voting with their feet. On average, only 11 tenants per day visit this housing office. Margaret's so-called higher counts are deliberately misleading. They include housing staff, surveyors, community safety wardens, etc going in and out of the office. Low footfall and expensive repair bills mean that this housing office is not value for money. It is wasting scarce resources.

Even so, before recommending the closure of the office, council officers carried out a widespread consultation exercise. This showed that over 60 per cent of tenants who replied prefer to contact the council by phone. The minority who prefer personal contact are very clear that they would find Central Milton Keynes the most convenient location to visit, with about a quarter preferring a housing officer to visit them in their home.

The cabinet listened to tenants' views and is providing a housing service in Central Milton Keynes, as well as a home visiting service for those tenants who prefer that or are unable to make the trip to the city centre.

Let me assure those who signed the petition that their views have also been taken into account. Housing officers will continue to provide local drop-in surgeries in Bradville as well as home visits.

It's a pity Margaret has not informed Bradville residents of that.

No right turn at Hockey Stadium roundabout

SIR – Have you noticed on the newly remodelled roundabouts over the A5 and near the Hockey Stadium, that it's impossible to turn right?

Well at least according to the road markings. They only allow turning left or straight on. There are no right turn arrows.

As I often want to turn right, I'm left with the dilemma of which straight on lane should I choose when I'm turning right?

As a local I know where to go and clearly to turn right you take the lane closest to the roundabout, but what kind of crazy thinking marks this as a straight-on lane?

Maybe the road planners could explain themselves this nonsense.

No holiday gain for school kids at Easter

SIR – I felt your story on the extra days that MK school children will get this year rather biased.

It suggests that children will gain from the move of the Easter break, as they will also get the Easter bank holidays off.

What you fail to mention is that the summer term has been extended by two days to allow for this.

I hope you will be remedying this omission in you next edition.

Elected mayor would bring power balance

SIR - Is MK Council in touch with citizens or not?

When Cllr Isobel McCall said that 'except for one individual nobody supports having an elected mayor' presumably she was referring to Cllr Brian White.

Whether she realised it or not, she was illustrating his point exactly. When she says 'nobody' she means no other councillors.

But what about the rest of us? I am increasingly disillusioned by the failure of the council to address the issues of MK expansion in an intelligent way.

The proposals for traffic lights on V4 are just one example along with a range of issues in Central Milton Keynes. English Partnerships and various developers seem to have all their own way.

Perhaps an elected mayor is just what we need to provide a proper balance of power.

And after all, the sky hasn't fallen in over London since it had an elected mayor.

This is a decision for the people not for councillors. Cllr White has clearly touched a raw nerve somewhere.

Poo rules should apply to horse owners

SIR – Rightly, we dog owners are expected to clear up the mess that our animals leave behind them.

In and around New Bradwell are a number of horse owners.

As a horse leaves far more mess behind it that any dog I think it is reasonable for them to stop and clear up after their animals – but they don't.

As a result there are parts of the area where we have to gingerly pick our way past the deposits that have been left by horses.

Is it not time that the council applied the same rules to horse riders as it does to dog walkers?

Review of railway conservation area

RESIDENTS and businesses in Wolverton are being invited to give their views about a review of a conservation area set up to preserve the Victorian industrial heritage of the railway town.

For a period of six weeks from mid January, the public and interested parties are urged to give their opinions on the conservation area that protects one of the best examples of a railway town in the UK.

Only a handful of towns in the country can claim to have a similar heritage to Wolverton, such as Swindon or Crewe.

Its significance is further enhanced by the presence of structures along the line of the original London to Birmingham railway, built by George Stephenson and his son, Robert.

These include the embankment on which the Royal Train Shed and the bridge that carried the original line over the canal.

Now the review is to re-appraise the special historic character of those parts of the town that lie within the conservation area and whether any amendments to the existing boundaries are required.

Conservation areas are designated to protect places that are of special historic character or appearance and council's have a duty to carry out regular reviews.

Wolverton conservation area was designated in 2001 following a detailed appraisal of the town and its history. Further measures were introduced in 2003 to protect features that are vulnerable to change, such as windows and doors.

> Wolverton conservation area is unusual in that it seeks to protect the character of Victorian industrial buildings, commercial areas and domestic housing rather than picturesque villages or historic town centres
> – Martin Ellison, council conservation officer

The review will help to clarify how the conservation area works and will consider proposals to expand the area slightly.

Martin Ellison, council conservation officer of the design and conservation section, said: "Once designated the council has a legal duty to ensure that the special historic character of conservation areas is preserved or enhanced.

"Reviewing the conservation area allows an opportunity to re-assess the features and characteristics that distinguish Wolverton as a place.

"Wolverton conservation area is unusual in that it seeks to protect the character of Victorian industrial buildings, commercial areas and domestic housing rather than picturesque villages or historic town centres."

A key goal of the review process is to safeguard the character and appearance of many of the historic industrial features while allowing the town to develop and grow sensitively.

The special character of places like Wolverton and the manner in which both the town's housing and industry developed over time give the town particular historic fascination.

The issues that people raise about the conservation area will help the council make decisions about proposed developments that lie within the designated area.

Also the review will enable the design and conservation team to provide more detailed and clearer advice to residents and owners of businesses in the future.

■ Advice about the draft Wolverton Conservation Area Review can be obtained from Martin Ellison on 01908 252501.

Care assistants to replace paramedics on ambulance duty

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-now.co.uk

SEVENTY care assistants are being recruited to man ambulances in a move that has been questioned by paramedics.

The South Central Ambulance Trust (SCAT) is expecting to have the emergency care assistants (ECAs) trained and able to attend to patients in the Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire division by April this year.

The trust says ECAs will crew ambulances alongside a paramedic or technician and provide a better use of resources by freeing up paramedics to be used elsewhere.

The trust is also getting three more double crewed ambulances (DCAs) and six more one-manned Rapid Response Vehicles (RRVs) by April.

ECAs are being trained in the basic principles of first aid, basic life support and resuscitation, but cannot perform invasive techniques or administer certain drugs.

Concerns have been raised by UNISON, the union representing ambulance staff, that there are inconsistencies in the training ECAs are given across the South Central Ambulance Trust.

A spokesman said: "There is supposed to be a set course but the four divisions are teaching different things."

He added: "ECAs are supposed to be working with paramedics or technicians but they are going out with just two ECAs or on their own."

He said ECAs can perform CPR but must wait for a paramedic before making other decisions such as to move a patient.

"It is a worry at this particular moment, but may not be such a concern when we are up to full crew in April," he added.

A spokesman for SCAT said: "The introduction of ECAs is a national initiative, brought in by the Department of Health, to be implemented by all ambulance trusts across the UK."

"It is about ensuring the right care at the right time in the right place.

"The provision of the ECA means that paramedics can devote all of their time to the care of the patient and it means we can provide a wider range of paramedic skills within the community.

"For instance we can place more paramedics in Rapid Response Vehicles to respond to life threatening calls as well as place them in ambulances and also within the community.

"The ECA will have an important support role and they will also receive mentoring from our qualified clinicians."

She said the trust is not worried the standard of care will be affected as ECAs will not be sent to incidents which will require them to have extended skills.

"We are responding to the national initiative to send better care to the patient in a quicker time frame by sending the most appropriately qualified person to a particular call which will have been categorized by staff in our emergency operations centre," she said.

Friday night traffic chaos

THE city's roads were in chaos after a major pile up and a chemical spillage.

A four-car pile-up on the A5 on Friday left some drivers stuck in queues for up to an hour.

Police were called to the incident at 5.40pm on Friday (January 4) on the A5 northbound carriageway close to the junction with the Abbey Hill roundabout.

Traffic jams backed up down the northbound carriageway to the junction with the H5 Portway grid road.

A woman who was travelling in a red Suzuki Alto was taken to Milton Keynes General Hospital to be treated for minor injuries.

The driver of the Suzuki has been reported for careless driving.

The three other cars involved included a bronze Honda Civic and a black Volkswagen Polo.

The road was not reported clear until 7pm that evening.

Elsewhere a chemical spillage caused traffic congestion around J14 of the M1.

Police advised motorists to avoid the area after a white Renault van lost its load at 1.30pm on Friday.

Seven 1,000-litre barrels of a chemical – believed to be phosphoric acid – fell from the van and about 1,000 litres leaked on to the carriageway.

The Fire Service and Environmental Agency were called to the scene to try to contain the spillage.

Police closed the southbound exit and entry slip road to the motorway, the A5130 between the motorway and Newport Pagnell and the Northfield roundabout, where the H5 Portway and H6 Childs Way meet.

Motorists were advised to seek an alternative route during rush hour.

The northbound entrance and exit slip roads remained open but traffic was diverted towards Newport Pagnell.

Nativity scene at Church of the Servant in Furzton

Nativity scene has city bus shelter stable

Concrete cows and the Xscape building appear in Furzton church display

BY ALICIA BABAEE
alicia.babaee@mk-news.co.uk

MARY and Joseph gave birth to Jesus in a Milton Keynes bus shelter, according to one city display.

Churchgoers at the Church of the Servant King in Furzton were treated to the unusual Nativity scene this Christmas.

The congregation was encouraged to make models of their own homes as part of the city display.

The backdrop, also made by a parishioner, was a city skyline which included the iconic Xscape building.

And there were even concrete cows and a roundabout to complete the locally adapted setting for the Christmas story.

Reverend Mike Morris, from the ecumenical church, said: "Last year we visited a friend in London, who had decided they would put their Nativity scene on a tray of the area they lived in to make it relevant to today.

"A few years ago we built Bethlehem out of cardboard boxes, so in church this year we invited people to build models of their houses so we could make MK."

Parishioner Bill McCloskey came up with the idea that Mary and Joseph should have their baby in a bus shelter rather than an inn, to bring it in line with modern day surroundings.

He suggested that the display be called MK4D, instead of BC.

Around six people brought houses in for the scene, and two local schools, Emerson Valley and Howe Park, made models of their school buildings.

Children from the church's Sunday club made a roundabout and the concrete cows, which were the wrong colour in brown and white, were taken from Revd Morris' daughter's farmyard animal set.

The father of two put up the display up at the church on Dalverton Drive on Christmas Eve, prior to the 4pm service.

He said: "The response has been quite good.

"It's right at the front of the church so it's the main focal point.

"We probably will save it and use it again, because the bus shelter is really good."

The display can be seen until February.

Theatre bulb handout a touch of 'genie-ous'

MILTON Keynes Theatre's dazzling production of Aladdin which stars actor and comedian Bradley Walsh took on an extra shine this week for some 500 theatre-goers.

In a literal take on one of the pantomime's most famous line 'New lamps for old', energy supply company E.ON gave away 500 energy-saving light bulbs to the pantomime audience.

Phil Biddle, head of energy efficiency at E.ON said: "We gave away 500 energy saving bulbs to theatregoers on Thursday, January 3 as part of our continual drive to deliver energy efficiency messages.

"Replacing just one traditional light bulb for an energy efficient alternative can save a typical household up to £7 a year, so Milton Keynes theatregoers will be saving at least £3,500 a year on their electricity bills, while helping reduce their carbon footprint and doing a little bit for the planet too.

"And although this giveaway was inspired by the famous 'New lamps for old' slogan, we weren't asking people to bring their old bulbs in!"

A Milton Keynes Theatre spokesman said: "All the staff here, along with Bradley Walsh and the cast of Aladdin, are keen to 'go green' in 2008, and were delighted to be involved in such a positive initiative".

E.ON provides free energy-saving light bulbs to people on qualifying benefits, through its CaringEnergy scheme.

The company has invested £100m in CaringEnergy, which is designed to help improve the energy efficiency and income of vulnerable households.

To find out more, call the E.ON CaringEnergy team free on 08000511480.

Emotional and factual support for those affected by cancer

Last month MK NEWS featured a story about lung cancer awareness, highlighting the support available at Milton Keynes Hospital's Macmillan Centre. Within a week five people visited the Macmillan Centre wanting to know more. Reporter ROB GIBSON went along to find out how the service works

Fay Grech-Margurat and nurse Erica Lewsey at Milton Keynes Hospital's Macmillan Centre

FAY Grech-Margurat is a very busy woman but few people know of her work and the impact it has on people in Milton Keynes.

She is the Macmillan Information and Support Centre manager, which means she is the person who offers emotional and factual support to people affected by cancer.

Many residents remain unaware that there is a cancer support service available at the hospital which is free to everyone.

When Fay arrived at the hospital a year ago the service had been out of action for nearly 13 months but sitting in the support room today it soon becomes clear that an array of up-to-date resources are available.

The 32-year-old manager, from Woburn Sands, smiles when recalling how far the unit has come.

Fay worked as a chemotherapy nurse at Northampton Hospital for ten years and has a thorough understanding of the patient's experience and the medical terminology used.

Although she is not a qualified counsellor, she feels that she is well qualified to understand their emotions.

"The majority of people I see here are undergoing chemotherapy treatment and visitors soon see that I know what I'm talking about," Fay said.

"People come here fearful and in denial. They're in disbelief that they've had a cancer diagnosis and may be angry or depressed.

"Their families may also have similar emotions and concerns.

"I try to instil confidence in people."

The centre has capacity for as many as 50 patients and these are cared for by two specialist nurses, six nurses and one care assistant.

Some cancer patients decide to visit the centre themselves, without any prompting, while others are referred by their GP, nursing teams, Willen Hospice or social services.

Fay said: "GPs are now sending more people to see me, rather than giving people anti-depressants. It can be more effective to see me and many people just need a listening ear."

Some people who visit the centre are described by Fay as 'the worried well', meaning they are worried that they have symptoms of cancer.

Fay says that this awareness of the symptoms is invaluable for early diagnosis but also for putting people's minds at ease if they do not have cancer.

She works three days a week but the popularity of the service now means that patients often have to make an appointment to see her.

Half the people who visit the centre for support do not have cancer but know someone who does.

This means that Fay helps as many relatives as she does patients.

Fay said: "The patients get a lot of attention from doctors and nurses but it can be quite hard for the relatives to feel part of that. I support as many family members as I do patients."

After a few moments listening to Fay, it becomes clear she has an ambitious vision for the Macmillan Centre.

She believes that it has the potential to offer a complementary therapy service to patients who are being treated, including aromatherapy.

Fay feels that these play a crucial role for the wellbeing of patients.

She said: "They walk out of the aromatherapy sessions saying they feel lovely, rather than thinking about the side-effects of their treatment."

The commitment of the cancer nurses was recently demonstrated during a series of 'tester' aromatherapy sessions for patients. They sacrificed time from their annual leave to run the sessions on a voluntary basis.

Erica Lewsey, 42, has been a Macmillan Nurse Practitioner for nine years, she said: "The old clinic was rather dark and depressing. The patients absolutely adore this new environment and decor, which makes it much more relaxed."

Some patients will only visit the support nurse once, offload their feelings and thoughts, and never return again – others make regular visits.

Fay said: "This job but is a privilege. If patients are distraught when they come through the door but by the time they've left there's relief on their face then it's all worth it."

MK joins the 'greats'

BY LAURA HANNAM
laura.hannam@mk-news.co.uk

MILTON Keynes is to sit alongside New York, Paris and London in an art exhibition.

A newly commissioned photograph of the city will join artists Maslen & Mehra's Native series, which features images of great international cities.

The exhibition will be displayed on the Milton Keynes Contemporary WHITEWALL, in Midsummer Arcade in thecentre:mk from Saturday until March 2.

Three photographic images will be presented in lifesize light boxes standing on the floor.

They feature mirrored sculptures of animals placed in built urban environments to reflect the man-made structures around them.

The imagery of native wildlife against highly urban environments highlights the complex relationship between nature and culture.

The photographs depict a Camarge horse in front of the Louvre, Paris, an American eagle in Times Square, New York and a European wolf and red squirrel in Docklands, London.

These will be complemented by the image of a deer on Midsummer Boulevard, Milton Keynes.

The artists explore the meeting point and overlapping of nature and culture.

Works take the form of photography, installation, sculpture and drawing, and the fauna represented were indigenous to the country in which they are photographed.

OAP in fight against arthritis ignorance

A MAN is on a crusade to raise awareness of rheumatoid arthritis after his wife suffered from the disease for ten years before her death.

Henry Keegan, 80, of Leary Cresent, Newport Pagnell, is determined that the world will learn about the ailment so that his wife's death was not in vain.

His wife, Joan, died last January aged 74.

Now, a year on, he finally feels strong enough to fight the disease on her behalf.

He said: "With other types of arthritis you can have joints removed and replaced. But not with rheumatoid arthritis, it is a crippling disease.

"The problem is that it gets progressively worse. During the night she would scream out in pain, it was in all her joints. The conventional medicines, steroids, did not work. All the medications gave her side effects, they affected other parts of her body."

Rheumatoid arthritis has no known cure.

It affects nearly half a million people in the UK and there are 12,000 who have the disease in its juvenile form.

Mr Keegan cared for his wife for ten years before her death.

He feels that medical professionals lacked knowledge about the disease, and failed to make effective decisions about her care.

Henry Keegan holds a poster with a picture of his wife who suffered from rheumatoid arthritis

Now he is working with the National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society, the only national charity with a specific focus on rheumatoid arthritis, to raise awareness of the auto-immune disease.

The charity supports people with the disease, their families and their carers.

Later this month a memorial bench for Joan Keegan will be moved to the house the couple shared and will be blessed by their priest.

New year, new skills

AFTER giving up smoking and losing weight, gaining new qualifications is one of the most popular resolutions people make at this time of year.

Milton Keynes College is helping local people already in jobs to gain new qualifications or to improve on the qualifications they already have – completely free of charge.

The college is offering the Train to Gain service, so that people can attain NVQ qualifications for skills they are already demonstrating in their jobs.

Already the scheme has been welcomed by many Milton Keynes employers who want to encourage workers to gain new qualifications.

College spokesman Chris Rice said: "This is a fantastic opportunity for loads of local adults to get a nationally recognised qualification for what they can already do.

"Unqualified individuals who work in areas such as retail, hospitality, construction or transport have probably already learned lots of excellent skills. We can assess those skills and reward with qualifications or suggest ways of improving those skills through training."

Mr Rice says that by 2012 it is believed that 85 per cent of all jobs will require skills and competencies at or around NVQ Level 3.

He added: "In the future, it seems likely that people without qualifications will find themselves with limited job opportunities. There are other benefits to having qualifications too, as better trained people will be happier, more confident and have greater earning power."

Train to Gain is funded by the Learning and Skills Council, and is aimed at encouraging individuals and businesses to realise the benefits that learning and skills can bring.

The service will enable many more adults to achieve a first full NVQ Level 2 qualification, and to improve their basic literacy and numeracy skills.

For more details about Train to Gain call MK 637056.

Dead batteries aid hearing dogs for deaf

A HEARING centre is collecting hearing aid batteries for recycling this month to raise funds for a deaf charity.

Until February 6 staff at the Specsavers hearing centre in Milton Keynes are donating 50p to charity Hearing Dogs for Deaf People for each person who brings in hearing aid batteries.

People bringing in batteries to the store at Unit 4a, 35-37 Silbury Arcade, Milton Keynes will also be encouraged to give a discretionary donation to the charity.

Ehtsham Rashid, hearing aid audiologist at the centre said:

"We hope everyone will show their support for Hearing Dogs for Deaf People by bringing in their old batteries, and raising money for a great cause."

The Specsavers battery recycling initiative will remain a permanent offering from the store.

Most batteries contain heavy metals, which when disposed of incorrectly may leak into the ground as the battery casing corrodes.

This can contribute to soil and water pollution and endanger wildlife.

Recycle cards to help plant trees

CELEBRITY Jungle star Anna Ryder Richardson is calling on residents in Milton Keynes to recycle their Christmas cards to help the Woodland Trust plant thousands of trees.

Interior designer Anna, a star of BBC's Changing Rooms, is a keen recycler and was recruited by campaign group Recycle Now to encourage people to get behind the Christmas card recycling scheme.

In Milton Keynes special collection bins will be available throughout January at WH Smith high street stores, Tesco stores, TK Maxx stores and all Marks & Spencer stores.

All the cards collected during the campaign are taken to paper mills where they are recycled into brand new paper products, with the money raised helping the Woodland Trust plant thousands of new trees throughout the UK.

Anna said: "I love sending and receiving Christmas cards. But I want to encourage everyone to remember to recycle them – not only will it help the Woodland Trust plant more trees but also stops recyclable waste needlessly ending up being sent into landfill."

Other options to recycle your cards include: cutting them up to make gift tags for next year's presents, putting them in your pink sack with your other recyclables.

Interior designer Anna Ryder Richardson is backing Recycle Now

Or you can take them to a paper bank at your nearest recycling point or community recycling centre.

Cllr Douglas McCall, MK Council cabinet member responsible for environment, said: "By recycling Christmas cards we are making the most of a goodwill gesture to add benefit to the environment once the season ends by using the proceeds from recycling to plant new trees."

Sue Holden, chief executive of the Woodland Trust, added: "Your efforts not only prevent cards going to landfill which generates greenhouse gas, but you help us plant thousands of trees."

An impressive collection target of 100million cards has been set by the Woodland Trust and Recycle Now, which will enable 24,000 trees to be planted and save 2,600 tonnes of CO2 equivalent greenhouse gases – the same as taking over 800 cars off the road for a year.

MP hopeful fights for Post Offices

BY LUKE HARGER
luke.harger@thenews.co.uk

A LIB DEM parliamentary candidate has set a benchmark in save local post offices.

Jill Hugh, a Liberal Democrat candidate for the Wilton Regent Ward, has launched a petition to save Fisherwood and Lydia Wilcox post offices.

Both are facing closure as part of a government programme to reform struggling rural post offices.

Three options, Subsequent, Franchise and Network Subsidy Scheme, are being considered.

Post Offices minister Jacqui Smith said: "Subsidy payments are the only way to keep rural post offices open."

Cllr Hugh, Liberal Democrat Councillor for Fisherwood, said: "Both of the post offices where many people collect their pensions and benefits are in the middle of housing estates, so are accessible to many people."

"It is local Post Office closes it will mean a long journey for someone to pick up their pension, or even a parish, unfortunately a shop selling things can't go."

She added that the loss of Post Offices would be hitting elderly residents and others dependent on the service.

"Unfortunately most local services, if there are a couple, tend to be cut back and there is nothing left in the community for people to meet."

The petition, consultation is due to end on February 2 and Cllr Hugh is urging residents to write to the Post Office.

She said: "The last consultation appears to be over, so we want to start knocking on doors to reveal the consultation period."

Drum kit theft delays Stables rehearsals

A THEFT of percussion instruments has disrupted preparations for a show to be staged in Milton Keynes.

The cast of Raw Rhythm were due for a dress rehearsal at their Hampshire base only to be advised by police at midnight the night before that their truck, storing drums and xylophones, had been taken.

Packed ready for transport to their rehearsal space in Eastleigh, near Winchester, the truck contained in excess of £45,000 worth of kit.

Director Joe Fitzpatrick had to ring around his volunteer staff in the middle of the night to warn them that they would have to make contingency plans so that valuable rehearsal time was not lost.

At this stage Joe's only consolation was that the brass instruments were at home with the cast as they practised individual scores for the unique upcoming show of choreographed live music.

The Yamaha instruments are owned by The Senators Drum and Bugle Corps, reigning European Champions of an interpretive American-style of outdoor arena show.

Twentyfive of the cast have combined to stage Raw Rythmn, an ambitious three theatre tour of which The Stables is the second venue.

Producer of the show Jim Vaughan said: "The police located the abandoned truck near Portsmouth and transported it to their secure garage, but it was not until 24 hours later after forensic tests, that the corps was able to gain access to the truck and check for any losses.

"Fortunately, though the truck had been damaged and some equipment had been stolen, no instruments were missing"

Joe Fitzpatrick, who has been director of The Senators for 23 years added: "When I telephoned the news to the rehearsal venue there was a huge sigh of relief. Our percussionists have only lost a day's rehearsal which means a few extra hours will be needed before we hit the Stables stage – now with even more determination to bring something special to Milton Keynes."

The police are still searching for the thieves.

■ For more on Raw Rythmn see this week's MK Life.

Major event: Horse rider Helen Boulton has been awarded sponsorship by her bosses

Friday's good for weekend events

MILTON Keynes-based horse rider Helen Boulton has been given a cash windfall to fulfil her riding dreams.

Helen has worked at PR firm Friday's Media Group since she graduated from The University of Wales with a law degree in 2005.

Now the company has given her £1,800 sponsorship for the 2008 British eventing season.

For the past year Helen has been retraining her ex-showjumper Annie (Animation) in preparation for their first season of affiliated eventing, which will kick off with the first event in April this year.

Helen and Annie train at their home yard in Bow Brickhill during the week and compete locally at weekends.

Helen said: "This is a very exciting time for me as I have always dreamed of being an affiliated event rider, and 2008 will see me fulfil my ambition.

"The sponsorship money from Friday's and their continued support is so incredibly generous and will help me an enormous amount in my debut season with Annie: affiliated eventing is an expensive, time-consuming but rewarding sport and I can hardly wait for my first event."

Dressage coach Alison Kenward BHSII said: "I have worked with Helen for six months or so and am thrilled with the progress she has made, I'm very proud of her performances with Annie. Helen is a pleasure to coach because she works so hard and is open to discussing new ideas and training strategies. Annie is beginning to fulfil her athletic potential and the scene has been set for success in 2008. I feel they are a combination to look out for."

Jill Hawkins, director of Friday's Media Group, said: "Helen juggles her eventing career with Annie alongside her PR career at Friday's, and it is a pleasure every Monday to hear of that weekend's competition successes.

"We are all very much looking forward to an exciting season in 2008, and it is great to be involved in such an exciting sport."

Milton Keynes Council

Your money, your choice:
Budget consultation 2008/09

Calling all borough residents - now's your chance to tell us what you think about the Council's budget proposals for the coming year.

The budget affects every resident of Milton Keynes as it sets the level of Council Tax and decides the level of services that you receive from the Council. To help us make the right decisions the Council wants to hear your views on our proposals.

This year we are asking for your views not just on the Liberal Democrat Cabinet's proposals, but also proposals from the Conservative and Labour opposition parties where they differ from the Cabinet. This is to reflect the political balance of the Council.

The Council's Cabinet is proposing a Council Tax increase of 3.9%. The rise in council tax means an increase of £39.65 per year, or just over 76p per week, on an average Band D property.

In order to keep Council Tax as low as possible and to minimise the impact on services, the Cabinet is proposing efficiency savings of £3.7m.

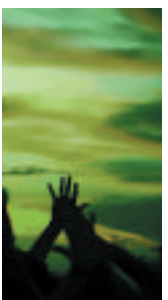
We are also proposing to invest in services that the public have told us are important. These include tackling crime and anti-social behaviour; activities for young people; continuing the litter busters team and raising educational standards at GCSE level.

The Council is carrying out consultation on the detailed budget proposals and proposed Council Tax levels until 4th February 2008.

What you tell us will help us to make the final decisions on the budget. The final budget, including Council Tax levels, will be proposed by Cabinet on 19th February and agreed by Full Council on 26th February. Both meetings are open to the public.

We would like your views on those savings that affect services and on the proposed investment in services. You can respond using the response form opposite and return it to the FREEPOST address by 4th February 2008 - you could win £50 in gift vouchers!

If you would like to know more, there is a consultation leaflet that explains more about the budget and Council Tax and outlines what our proposals for next year are. The leaflet will be available in all main Council offices, libraries and at various community locations across Milton Keynes.



Alternatively, you can:

When the festivities safely behind you it is an excellent time to assess the harm, you have done to your body and what can be done about it. Is it possible over-indulgence in the good things of life, coupled with the less than kind effects of winter weather, can have wreaked irreparable damage to figure, skin and constitution. Most problems can be remedied, it,s simply a matter of time and application, dedication if you like, to the cause of self re-building.

The main things lacking from every spotty and over-weight person,s life at this time of year, are exercise and fresh air. Both can be acquired without too much trouble. The trick is to have them in sufficient quantities, in the right way, at the right time.

MUSIC REVIEWS

DECALER INDEPENDENCE
Bjork

I HAVE a lot of time for Bjork. She does her own thing, and it usually works out.

Even when she does misfire – It's Oh So Quiet, for example – there's usually a Bachelorette or an I Miss You to make up for it.

Unfortunately, this one's a massive misfire. It doesn't do very much for the first couple of minutes, and when it does get going it pretty much degenerates into noise. There's really not very much more to it than that, I'm afraid, there's only one riff and there aren't even any strange warbling sounds from Bjork this time round because she speaks (and sometimes shouts) the words.

In fairness to Bjork, this is certainly different, and it's got a stronger industrial-stroke-metallic sound to it that I've never heard from her before, but this one doesn't work for me at all.

CONQUEST
White Stripes

HANG on, is that trumpets I hear? In a White Stripes song?

I suppose I shouldn't really be surprised, seeing as each time they release a new single it bears little resemblance to its predecessor.

But even by their standards Conquest is completely and utterly barking. You see, the White Stripes aren't all that dissimilar to Bjork – they tend to release stuff that nobody else would think of, and every so often they put out a dud, which is usually followed up with something much better to even things out.

Now, I'm not saying their last single was a duffer, but to my mind the one before (Icky Thump) most certainly was.

Right from the off with this song though, it's pretty obvious that Conquest is so far off the mental scale it buries the needle.

You see, there's more than a slight Spanish-sounding tinge to the proceedings as Jack White practically pours his heart out. In fact, he does such a good job of it I was surprised to find out that this isn't actually one of his songs, it's actually a cover of an ancient song written by someone called Corky Robbins.

Wonderful stuff.

NW5
Madness

IT'S nice to have bands treading the same path year after year.

Take Madness, for instance. At their height, there weren't many bands around that could touch them, and I don't care who hears me say that. Our House? A work of genius. Shut Up? Fantastic. Uncle Sam? Alright, fair enough, nobody's perfect.

Still, it's a strange thing to listen to a band that hasn't really moved forward musically all that much since the 1980s and yet is somehow still capable of coming up with songs as good as this.

There's a fairly dark tone to the proceedings here, but you know what it's like with Madness singles, Suggs could be singing about someone having their head ripped off by a crocodile while a deranged monkey goes to work on the rest of him with a chainsaw, but the music is just cheerful enough to leave you with the impression that the poor bloke made a full recovery afterwards.

Madness aren't daft – they may sound it on the surface, but when you dig a bit deeper their songs usually have something to say, and that's probably why they're still knocking around now.

Good on 'em, I say.

RAW RHYTHM
Saturday, January 19
DRUMMERS who supported SEAL in December's Royal Variety Show are among the cast of RAW RHYTHM a unique show of live choreographed music performed by 25 young musicians.

Live brass, percussion and vocals are fused with manoeuvre and dance to present music as varied as the great American Song Book, Latin American Rhythms and popular classics.

Director Joe Fitzpatrick says; "The show has a core of jazz, with percussive sets that could be compared to Stomp. Our show is a unique visual interpretation of some great melodic scores which the whole family will enjoy."

The concept behind the show is to create new performance opportunities and new audiences for an activity that spends most of its time performing live interpretative shows in sports stadiums throughout the country.

The cast are the most able musicians drawn from the American-style Drum and Bugle Corps genre of the UK's marching band activity. Several have toured in the US, and the majority are members of reigning European Champions, The Senators Drum and Bugle Corps from Eastleigh in Hampshire.

Producer Jim Vaughan added: "We are proud of our live music traditions and of the performance skills that our young people have. We want to make sure that these are seen and appreciated by a wider section of the community."

Raw Rhythm is supported by the British Federation of Youth Marching Band Organisations.

RSI
Supports: Dragster, Jim Sorrow and Show Your Stripes
Friday, January 11
MK punk/hardcore/rock band RSI return to headline at The Pitz.

Formed in 2003 under the name Routine Social Incompetence and influenced by many genres and such bands as The Clash, The Ramones, The Damned, UK Subs, Iron Maiden, and Anthrax they focused on writing songs, only doing a few gigs.

In 2004 RSI went into the studio to record ten tracks by a member of Capdown, Keith Minter.

Four of those tracks went into creating the EP Miles Of Nothing which, to date, has sold around 1,000 copies.

It was 2005 when the band got down to hard work on the riotous live show and playing over 50 gigs supporting bands such as Anti Nowhere League, Marky Ramone, UK Subs, Gravel Trap and Chelsea as well as doing headline shows up and down the country.

RSI then went on to headline their first hometown gig at The Pitz in February 2006, which saw 400 people joining in with the chaos. The show was recorded and released as a limited edition cd.

Dragster, from Coventry, are female-fronted garage rockers currently causing a buzz within the music industry.

Jim Sorrow, the former Freaks Union singer, goes it alone armed with his banjo.

He tours the UK playing a heartfelt blend of folk/country/punk.

Show Your Stripes are a young MK positive hardcore punk rock band.

Tickets £6. Doors 7.30pm.

PARKLIFE

SHAKE off the winter blues and any lingering cold and flu bugs by resolving to get active with The Parks Trust in 2008.

Whatever your age or interests Milton Keynes is blessed with a wide variety of parks that are all within a stone's throw of where you live. Discover your nearest park by checking The Parks Trust's website www.theparkstrust.com

Many of our parks and events are perfect to kick start your new fitness regime for 2008, whether its simply a promise to go walking for half an hour each day, taking the whole family out for a monthly ramble and some fresh air or training for a charity fun run.

If you need some additional support to maintain your New Year's resolutions join one of hundreds of organised activities in the parks, including Pushchairs in the Parks, the Women's Walking Network, BuggyFit, orienteering or a guided discovery cycle ride.

Don't forget that if you work in central Milton Keynes the parks are easy to access too, and a lunchtime walk may be just what you need to tackle the rest of your working day.

For those who want to make a resolution with a difference, why not promise to volunteer for nature?

Being outdoors and close to wildlife is great fun and can help keep you healthy too.

Here are some of the ways you can help wildlife and your parks in the coming year.

■ Help us to survey special species

The Parks Trust organise surveys to learn more about particular species of plants and animals. Results can help establish how vulnerable they are and can help to shape our landscape management.

■ Join one of our practical conservation working parties

Get involved in working for wildlife in Milton Keynes. Our practical conservation programme is a chance to take part in tasks which make the parks an even better environment for wildlife and people. No experience is needed as tools and a briefing are provided.

■ Become a volunteer Trustee Opportunities don't have to be outdoors - you could find yourself making good use of your business and professional skills by becoming a Trustee. The Parks Trust is looking for people who care passionately about Milton Keynes and want to shape and influence the city's parks and quality of life by becoming a volunteer trustee of the charity.

MUCH ADO CATERERS

Stanley Court, Olney
01234 714006
Review by MK NEWS news team

Yum, yum: Part of the spread delivered by Much Ado and tested by MK NEWS news team

FOR people who don't live in Olney, Much Ado could be an undiscovered gem.

With both a catering service which been going strong for eight years and shop, it's right for so many occasions.

The shop offers a wide range of fine foods, making it the ideal place to buy for a meal for two, a picnic for the family or a dinner party.

There are cheeses from across the country, Gloucester Old Spot Pies from Norfolk, sausages from Woburn, eggs, fresh herbs, freshly baked breads, local ham and local seasonable vegetables.

More unusual items include dressed crab, quails egg, pink lemonade, luxury biscuits, marmalades, crayfish tailed and fresh chilled filled pastas direct from Italy.

Much Ado offers corporate or private catering for breakfast meetings, working lunches, picnics, travelling lunches, cocktail parties, weddings, barbeques and even canape menus.

We had a selection of sandwiches, canapes and cakes delivered to our office and we were highly impressed by both the quality and the quantity.

The bread tasted fresher-than-fresh and the fillings were plentiful and tasty.

Our array included cheddar cheese and chutney, delicious cold meats with salad, turkey with cranberry and mozarella with tomato and pesto.

Much Ado prepares and cooks all locally-sourced meats on the premises.

We also had balsamic marinated mushrooms on crostini and individual quiches with spinach, cheese, olives and sundried tomatoes.

The desserts were lovely and everything was beautifully presented.

Much Ado is open 7-days-a-week.

Delivery giant TNT turns out just champion

Champion: Ruth James, head of people development (left) with Sue Barnes, TNT director of personnel

A DELIVERY company has earned a place among an elite band of the UK's business champions.

Milton Keynes express delivery giant TNT at Northfield is a one-in-a-thousand after a peerless approach to helping fulfil the potential of its people got it its place.

The Secretary of State for the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills John Denham MP revealed TNT as one of only 36 companies to be awarded the title of Investor in People Champion.

The prestigious Investor in People (IiP) Champions programme recognises employers that have boosted the performance of their businesses through the way they manage and develop their employees.

TNT on Northfield Drive was selected for 'Champion' recognition from 36,000 UK organisations who are all accredited to IiP.

The company has fully embraced the IiP philosophy and, as a result, has successfully realised the potential of its workforce and improved its bottom line and overall performance.

TNT was one of the first businesses to have 'Champion' status in 2004 when it was one of the first of 16 organisations to achieve the accreditation.

As one of the Champions, TNT will work with IiP to share its expertise with other employers to promote best practice in all areas of people development.

Simon Jones, acting chief executive of IiP said: "I would like to congratulate TNT on being selected yet again as one of the UK's business champions and thank them for the valuable contribution they have already made.

"I look forward to working with them in promoting business improvement through people."

TNT was also the first in the world to gain global IiP accreditation back in1994 a position it has maintained for the past 10 years and the first to win the famous IiP "laurels' in the express delivery sector.

Darren Batty, Milton Keynes depot general manager, said: "We are honoured to have been chosen as one of the first Investors in People Champions.

"Our ethos is that employees are central to the success of our organisation and it is vital that they are skilled, flexible and motivated."

P Public Notices

Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006
Criminal Evidence and Police Act 2001
The Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in designated Public Places) Regulations 2001

Milton Keynes Council is proposing to designate the public land bounded by the boundary line on the map of the following parish areas:
a) Newport Pagnell
b) Wolverton & Greenleys

By Order made under the above mentioned Regulations due to recent incidents of anti-social behaviour by persons using alcohol in these areas.

If an Order is made, then a Thames Valley Police Constable or Police Community Support Officer will be able to require the person consuming alcohol in a manner that may result in nuisance or annoyance to members of the public, or disorder, to cease that activity, and if necessary surrender containers of alcohol for disposal as considered appropriate.

The Order would not prevent a person consuming alcohol in a manner that does not give rise to any anti-social behaviour.

Background information on this issue is available for inspection at the Environmental Health Division, Civic Offices, 1 Saxon Gate East, Central Milton Keynes, MK9 3HN, between 9am and 5.15pm, Monday to Friday.

The Council is now consulting widely on this proposal, and observations from members of the general public would be welcomed by noon Wednesday 6 February 2008 at the address below.

Toyota's sporting edge

A NEW flagship Toyota Auris hits the streets this month, giving the range a new sporting edge.

The SR180 does not stint on eye-appeal, with Toyota Motorsport lowered suspension springs giving it a ground-hugging stance and a neat new rear spoiler positioned atop the tailgate.

Dark-tinted rear privacy glass and five-spoke 17-inch alloys add further to the style factor, while the choice of body colours includes an ber-cool Pure White.

The SR180 is far from being all-show-and-no-do. The 2.2-litre D-4D engine generates 175bhp, giving responsive and rewarding driving performance through the six-speed manual transmission.

Benchmark acceleration from 0 to 62mph is 8.1 seconds, while the D-4D engine's strong fuel efficiency returns an official 45.6mpg in combined cycle driving.

Further driving rewards are delivered by the dedicated, lightweight double wishbone rear suspension tailored specifically to meet the demands of the model's higher performance characteristics. Vehicle stability control (VSC) with traction control (TRC) are provided as standard.

In keeping with its flagship status, the SR180 has a high equipment specification with automatic dual-zone air conditioning, dusk-sensing headlamps, rain-sensing wipers and cruise control all part of the standard package.

The new model is available to order now, with both three and five-door versions available, priced respectively £17,995 and £18,495 on the road.

BARNET
League Two
Saturday, January 12. KO 3pm

AFTER briefly turning their attentions to the Johnstone's Paint Trophy the Dons are back at home hosting mid-table Barnet.

While the gap at the top was extended to 11 points, the teams in the bottom half of the table are a lot closer with ten point separating the Bees in 16th place and eighth placed Morecambe.

Adam Birchall will be hoping his heroic substitute appearance against Swindon in the FA Cup will help him grab a place in the starting line up. His strike five minutes from time ensured the Bees have another stab at over hauling their League One opposition in a replay.

Drissa Diallo is expected to revert back to right-back following Sean O'Hanlon's return to fitness, he will join Danny Swailes at centre back.

Sean O'Hanlon

If the previous three meetings are anything to go by goals should be expected as the Dons have scored three every time. Last year it was a Clive Platt hat-trick, the first ever for a Dons player, that secured the points.

Steve Bratt has been appointed as referee for the match, he has taken charge of 17 games this season and has handed out 61 yellow cards and one red.

PAUL Ince has rubbished rumours that he is on his way to Hibernian.

The Dons boss had been linked to the Scottish Premier League outfit but Ince said the exit talks were 'a bit far fetched'.

He told sky sports.com: "Not to say it's not flattering to be linked with all these clubs, but Scotland is a no for me.

"I'm happy where I am, I've got a job to do, not just this season but long term and I aim to do it.

"As flattering as it is to be linked with clubs here in England and abroad, I am just focusing on everything at Milton Keynes."

MK Dons Under-18s got 2008 under way with a scrappy 1-0 win over Watford.

Stephane Koffi's simple tap-in just before the hour mark was enough to ensure Mike Dove's side took the points.

Troy Farden set up the winner when he turned inside a Watford defender before playing a neat cross into the box for Koffi to slot home.

ON Friday Wycombe Wanderers confirmed the signing of Leon Knight.

As revealed by MK NEWS the striker sealed the deal for an undisclosed fee in an 18-month deal. The former-Dons player told Wycombe's official site he saw the move as a new challenge: "I wasn't playing much at Milton Keynes and I had been out of the team for a month. They're top of the league but they're there to be caught, and Wycombe have been climbing up the table recently so hopefully we can get within touching distance of them."

WILLY Gueret has picked up the League Two Player of the Month award.

The Dons' shot-stopper conceded just three goals last month as the side went unbeaten and collected 16 points from a possible 18.

It is the second award to recognise the Dons' fantastic December form, following boss Paul Ince collecting Manager of the Month last week.

The Frenchman fought off competition from Hereford United's Theo Robinson, Rochdale's Glenn Murray and Scott McGleish from Wycombe Wanderers to pick up the award which was won by team mate Lloyd Dyer in October.

Chris Kamara, chairman of the Powerade Player of the Month Awards panel, said: "Willy Gueret enjoyed another fantastic month. His impressive displays saw Paul Ince's side concede just three goals in their six league games to extend their lead at the top of League Two."

LEAVING it late seems to have become a habit for MK Dons, but when the side are 11 points clear at the top fans are certainly not complaining.

The Dons notched up another 1-0 win, their fourth in a row, away at Rotherham and once again it was another goal in the final ten minutes which won them the game.

It was the kind of performance that the Dons will look back on come the end of the season and remember it was far from a convincing display, yet it was another three points in the bag against one of their promotion-hunting rivals.

Millmoor is one ground that stirs up a lot of emotions for the Dons, the last time they travelled to Rotherham it was a date sealed with destiny as they suffered relegation from League One.

That sneaky win, one which they hope will help reinstate their League One status come May, helped put those ghosts to bed.

On the day the Dons' defence were nothing short of awesome as the Millers threw every player and every ball forward with no result.

And the winner came from some excellent defending in the Dons' box, the Millers had a free-kick cleared by Danny Swailes before Lloyd Dyer picked up possession on the left.

Jemal Johnson was played in and ran from deep inside his own half, into the boss's box before squaring for Mark Wright who squeezed it passed keeper Andy Warrington to give the Dons the lead with eight minutes remaining.

Rotherham, who had Derek Holmes head wide and Ryan Taylor's shot go inches passed the top corner, were left to pay for their brief switch off as they handed the Dons the three points.

It was another demonstration of the ruthlessness installed in the Dons player by manager Paul Ince. Despite not being on top form and spending a large part of the match trying to close out attacking threats they were still sent on their travels with a win.

The Millers had plenty of chances to go ahead, but they never did, meanwhile when the Dons were presented a golden opportunity at goal they grabbed it with both hands and buried it into the net.

FANS' FAVOURITE WRITES FOR YOU

PAUL MITCHELL

FIRST of all let me start by saying a big thank you to all the supporters for the reception they gave me on Saturday when I turned up for the game.

That type of support has been there all the way through my injury so far and has really helped me in my fight to regain fitness.

Once again Saturday was another massive game in what has been a busy couple of months but 22 points out of a possible 24 is incredible.

Every member of the squad and management deserves a massive pat on the back.

If you look at the fixtures we are more or less at the half way point and if we carry on in the same fashion we are going, come May we will definitely be there or there about.

As I predicted before Christmas, our squad was going to be heavily tested and in my eyes we have passed each test with flying colours.

Looking at the standard of the teams we have beaten there must have been a massive psychological blow to every team in the league waiting for us to slip up.

Let me tell you that the Gaffer and everyone at the club will do everything in their power to make sure that doesn't happen.

As another month passes us by our achievements are again rightly rewarded with the Gaffer receiving Manager of the Month award and Willy collecting the Player of the Month award. This, in my eyes, is long overdue. I cannot stress enough what a difference he has made as he has been absolutely fantastic this season so far.

Usually I would finish by saying see you all Saturday but this week I'll be having my second and, fingers crossed, last operation and hopefully taking a massive leap towards playing once again.

So it's back to cold toast and even colder shepherd's pie for a couple of days.

See you all soon

Twin wins keep Lightning third

LIGHTNING turned on the style at the weekend with two impressive wins to maintain their third spot in the EPL table.

The double win keeps the pressure up on first placed Guildford Flames, who are seven points clear, but Lightning have three games in hand.

Once again in-form Adam Carr was the star of the show following up his hat-trick last week with five goals against Swindon Wildcats.

Despite their guests having a decent run of form ahead of the clash Lightning looked a class above from the offset.

It took nine minutes for them to break the deadlock with Clarke finding plenty of room through the Swindon defence and firing in his first and two minutes later he grabbed his second.

At 2-0 down Swindon would have been optimistic heading into the second period but that confidence was dealt a massive blow when Clarke sealed his hat-trick on the 22nd minute.

From then on it never got any better for the visitors as their sloppy play and individual mistakes cost the team and invited Lightning to extend the lead further.

The fourth of the night came on the 32nd minute with goal scoring machine Clarke on the end of swift Lightning movement.

The real nail in the coffin came in the final period as Toni Alassaela scored seconds after face-off before Clarke bagged his fifth of the night.

John Wheaton managed to pulled one back for Swindon on the 47th minute from a power play, but the shot of the evening came from Dan Croft who fired in a super goal from inside the blue line.

Adam Radmall completed another fine display from Lightning five minutes from time to give his side a 8-1 victory.

Their game against Telford Tigers proved tougher than expected with a scoreless first period.

And it took until the final minute of the second period for the first goal to come courtesy of Alex Pance. Adam Carr slotted in the second before Mikko Skinnari made it 3-0 and secured the two points.

■ ON Saturday Lightning host Bracknell Bees at Planet Ice, face-off is at 7pm. They then travel to Guildford Flames on Sunday for the 6pm face-off.

PREPARATIONS are under way as MK Lions head off to their second ever major final and their first in the BBL Cup where they take on Newcastle Eagles Birmingham at the National Indoor Arena this Sunday.

The Lions' owner, Vince Macaulay, who has won Coach of the Month for December said: "It is a very exciting time for Milton Keynes, the Dons are flying high the Lightning are doing well and we are at the top of our league.

"With regards to the game itself it is going to be a very tough physical battle.

We are facing a team who know how to win, what we are doing is showing that we have learnt over the years and we are now ready to eat at the top table."

At the weekend the Lions suffered a narrow defeat to Cheshire Jets to leave them second in their BBL Trophy group.

But a win over defending champions Plymouth Raiders keeps them in the mix to qualify for the later stages.

Tony Windless had started the scoring with eight points of his own to give MK a 18-12 lead, only for Gavin Love to hit back with a triple.

In the second quarter Shawn Jamison added six to the board but the Raiders finished with a final 11-5 push.

Macauley's side went back in front after Jamison and Yorick Williams linked up for a 61-55 lead going into the decisive quarter. James Noel scored four early points for the Raiders, but Williams bagged four three-pointers before the visitors responded with a 14-6 run. However, Williams wrapped it up 30 seconds from time following a Windless basket.

A frantic finish against Cheshire Jets cost the Lions a chance to go top of the group. The Lions were trailing 68-64 going into the final quarter, before a 9-3 start gave them their first lead of the match. The Jets hit straight back with a 12-5 tear to retake the lead at 83-80.

Windless nailed a three-pointer to tie with just over a minute remaining. But the Jets' Jason Obazuaye netted with 35 seconds left before Jamison had a chance to level the score but missed the basket.

OLNEY stay five points clear at the top of the Southern Counties north league after hammering Amersham and Chiltern 36-0.

Fly half Rhys Peakman was the first Olney player to score when he collected from a scrum to cross the line before captain Dave Smith claimed a try of his own to give his side a 12-0 lead at half-time.

Amersham and Chiltern were worn down in the second-half. Olney's Ian Bennett grabbed two tries and man of the match Tom Stanton helped out the backs as he gathered Steve Gardner's pass to claim the fifth try of the afternoon.

Peakman bagged the last of the match to round off a superb Olney performance.

THE last time MK lost in the league was in November at the hands of Slough but they got their revenge as they beat their guests 27-10.

MK started the game strongly with Dan Walker collecting the ball on the wing and running through to score in the corner.

A moment of magic from Dan Pearson put them 10-0 up moments later when he chipped the ball over the defence, gathered himself and dived over.

Slough struck twice to score before half-time but not before Walker had grabbed his second try.

After the break Steve Christie and Mads Jesen added two more unconverted tries .

OLNEY TOWN were held to a goalless draw with Peterborough Northern Star.

MK Lightning have changed their face-off times for two upcoming fixtures.

Their match against Wightlink on Sunday, January 20 will start at 6pm and the tie against Telford Tigers will face-off at 6pm.

Eager Pickering

MK athlete Craig Pickering is eager to start the 2008 season.

With the Olympics taking place this year in Beijing it will be a massive test for the highly-rated sprinter.

The indoor season starts later this month in Glasgow and a year ago Pickering, a European junior 100metres champion, defeated training partner Jason Gardener in a thrilling 60m clash.

Pickering said: "I was overwhelmed with the outcome at last year's event. It was slightly daunting being against so many top athletes, but this year I feel a lot more confident and am again looking to better my times."

The Norwich Union International meeting will take place on January, 26.

BLETCHLEY suffered defeat to Swanage in the West Two east division.

After seven minutes Bletchley were 3-0 down before a simple chip over their defence took a wicked bounce which the Swanage winger collected and dived over the line for a converted try.

Bletchley were caught off guard when their hosts took a quick line-out on 22 metres and raced to the line for their second try, giving them a 17-0 lead at half-time.

Bletchley's Phil Harman sent a terrific cross kick down field which was fed out to flanker Carl Miller, who beat the Swanage defence to score under the posts for their only score of the match.

'No missa' Drissa seals dramatic penalty shoot-out

Johnstone's Paint Trophy Area Semi-Final
Priestfield Stadium

Gillingham 1 MK Dons 1

Dons win 5-4 on penalties

REPORT BY SIMONE CORGAN
simone.corgan@mk-news.co.uk

UNLIKELY hero Drissa Diallo sent MK Dons into the Johnstone's Paint Trophy area final, where they will meet Swansea, as they beat Gillingham 5-4 on penalties.

In a dramatic shoot-out the defender scored the all-important winning spot-kick to keep the Dons' Wembley dream alive.

The Gills' Luis Cumbers paid the highest price for hitting the post as Sean O'Hanlon, Mark Wright, Dreve Broughton and Alan Navarro all buried their penalties.

It seemed an impossible feat when Craig Stone fired the home side into the lead on the 84th minute but Jemal Johnson had other thoughts as he raced upfield to knock in the equaliser a minute later.

Although a league separates the two sides they were neck and neck throughout.

The game kicked off at a fierce pace with Jemal Johnson having a super effort blocked in the first five minutes.

Dean Lewington set Johnson on his way from a throw-in and the striker turned winger slinked in the box before blasting an on-the-turn strike but keeper Simon Royce was able to block at his near post.

The Gills were working the offside line well with Gary Mulligan sneaking through to meet a long ball. Drissa Diallo, the only covering defender, could have been in trouble for a high kick instead Mulligan shrugged off the challenge to go one on one with the keeper.

Yet the advancing Willy Gueret did enough to hurry the shot which went high over the bar.

Dreve Broughton should have fired the Dons into the lead on the 31st minute when he found his way through the defence only for his 16-yard strike to be pushed away by Royce for a corner.

Lewington had a last stab at putting the Dons ahead in stoppage time with a 25-yard drive which was parried by Royce and Mark Wright could not make a connection for the follow-up.

And it was the left-back who had the opening chance of the second-half when he sent a free-kick from 20-yards curling over the bar.

The evenly matched sides were not only battling against one another but the elements too.

The wet blustery conditions were making both goalkeepers reassess their clearances while long punts down field were assisted by the strong winds.

Gillingham were left wondering how they were not a goal up in the 74th minute when Mulligan got his head on the end of John Nutter's free-kick, as Gueret's fingertips failed to stop the ball home fans thought they were ahead. But Jude Stirling made a heroic clearance on the line to keep the Dons on level terms.

The moment inspired the Gills and after a period of sustained pressure they took the lead as Craig Stone finished well from Southall's corner.

But like most cup ties there was a twist to come and the Dons response was instant. Johnson burst down the left from the restart and from an almost impossible angle squeezed a shot beyond the keeper and into the back of the net.

Paul Ince's side then kept their cool in the shoot-out to dump their League One opponents out.

West End star and nation's favourite Bonnie Langford set to open new Expressive Arts Facility

Thornton College's new Expressive Arts Facility will be opened by Bonnie Langford at the end of the month.

The purpose built facility which has been built within the historic courtyard at the centre of the 11th century manor house building, will be used for dance, music and drama by the School's Nursery, Junior and Senior pupils.

Local building contractor Edgar Taylor has worked closely with specialist architects Acanthus Clews and the Historic Buildings Society to ensure that the new building is in keeping with the School's beautiful architecture.

The Facility has a sprung floor, specialist acoustic and sound system, 3 level lighting system and an automatic ventilation system.

Thornton pupils excel in the expressive arts and this is a wonderful addition to the School's facilities for performance and rehearsals. Girls achieve excellent results in Royal Academy of Dance (RAD), GSCE Dance, London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts (LAMDA) and the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music examinations. All pupils are encouraged to embrace the wealth of opportunities at Thornton to develop their expressive and creative talents.

Bonnie will officially open the Facility for use, watch some of the Junior pupils perform and talk to pupils about her career and about the girls' own aspirations.

Aerial view of the new facility with 6 weeks to go before completion.

The Rise and Rise of Eaton Mill Primary School

The government league tables for Milton Keynes published this December tell only a part of the success story of a school that has gone from strength to strength in recent years. The League table indicates that Eaton Mill pupils have made the most progress between the end of Key Stage 1 (at age 7) and the end of Key Stage 2 (at age 11).The table is based on a government measure called Contextual Value Added (CVA). This looks at schools nationally, taking account of their broader circumstances, and compares the progress of pupils from age 7 to 11. In Milton Keynes, Eaton Mill shows the most progress.

There has been a steady improvement at the school for a number of years, a fact that is apparent to the local community and reflected in the growing number of parents who are requesting places for their children at the school. In 2002 there were 36 children admitted to the Reception class however last year demand outstripped the number of places available. Warren Harrison, the Headteacher, commented that, "the Local Authority has been very supportive in the school exceeding its admission number which demonstrates a commitment to its revised plan to promote choice, diversity and high standards and indeed a duty to respond to parental concerns about the quality of local schools."

There has been a steady upward trend in children's CVA from 2005 to 2007 in all the core subjects of English, maths and science.

What the raw score tables do not show are some key successes that contribute to these figures and which promise further improvements in the future. There is no unauthorised absence at the school. This is a credit to the partnership that exists between the parents and the school. The school sets out to make it possible for families to know well in advance when holidays are planned and assists families to take advantage of cheaper deals. Warren Harrison, the Head teacher explained; "Rather than talk about the legal threats parents face if their children miss school we aim to help parents spend quality time with their children. It helps the families and it helps the school. We are partners with parents in the education of young people in MK and partners work together. This also applies to other events. Only the other week 500 Eaton Mill family members were at MK Dons together on a Saturday".

Supporting children to get a flying start is the main priority currently at Eaton Mill. The school has established a nursery that is also oversubscribed. In the past many children started Eaton Mill School with little or no high quality pre-school Nursery experience. That situation is rapidly changing which promises further success for Eaton Mill pupils in the future.

Warren Harrison paid tribute to the hard work and dedication of the staff, to the commitment of the Governing Body and to the tremendous support from the community all of which have contributed to the recent success of the school. "We are pleased with what has been achieved here but no one is complacent. We all want to see this school continue to make steady improvement for the benefit of all our families and the wider community"

Best Training Milton Keynes appoints new Centre Manager to cope with growth and expansion

Milton Keynes 2nd Jan 2008 – Best Training Milton Keynes today announced that senior tutor Ann Paisley as been promoted to the new role of Centre Manager in charge of all courses and exams offered at the centre.

Best Training Milton Keynes has more than doubled its workload and turnover in two years as a result of the success of the learndirect* and other contracts it runs. Over 150 learners gained a first Basic Skills qualification in Maths or English with us last year, and many more worked towards an IT qualification. Staff numbers in turn have therefore grown and so we now need to further develop and formalise our staff structure.

Following a long and interesting career in the public sector, Ann Paisley looked for a new challenge and has now worked in the adult education sector for nearly 6 years. Qualified to teach Literacy, IT and ESOL* to adult learners Ann has been with Best Training for the last 3 years. She has been mainly responsible for the success of the learndirect work at the centre and is looking forward to the wider challenge of her new role. "I am very excited at the opportunity to continue helping our learners learn new skills and achieve valuable national qualifications" said Ann today. "Having just opened a brand new training room we have plenty of space to enrol additional learners. Places are available immediately – call me on 01908 261204 to talk about the available options".

- Best Training Milton Keynes is a private-sector training centre established in Milton Keynes in 2002.
- learndirect is a Government-sponsored programme to enable individuals to gain important skills and qualifications. The great advantage of learndirect courses is that whether the learner chooses a Maths, English, IT or business and management course, they're all flexible enough to fit around other commitments. This means anyone can learn at the pace that suits themselves. Courses can generally be followed at a centre or online at work or at home.*
- All learndirect courses are very affordable and many are eligible for government funding. Maths and English courses will be free to most adults (some qualifications apply). In addition, many learndirect courses lead to nationally recognised qualifications.
- ESOL: English for Speakers of Other Languages is a special learning programme to help those whose first language is not English to improve their English skills.

When put on the spot, does your English hold you back?

You want to help them with their homework, but can you? If you'd like some help brushing up on homework of your own, a learndirect English course can help. You can study at a learndirect centre, at home or anywhere you have access to the internet. And if that works out, you'll find yourself with a new qualification.

Resolving to Change: make or break?

Do you believe in New Year resolutions? Admittedly New Year resolutions are in a totally different league to the tooth fairy or Father Christmas, so perhaps the question should be rephrased: Do you believe that New Year resolutions are an effective way to introduce a lasting change in someone's life? Although the question is simple, the answer is not always straight forward.

According to a new poll undertaken by Pitman Training, 50% of all adults made one or more New Year resolutions this January. However, of the half of us who decided to make a change, a third admitted to having their resolve dissolve within the first few days. While it is impossible to say at this stage what percentage of resolutions will be successful, these numbers are not inspiring. Often people have mixed feelings about the subject, as one respondent explained:

"I don't agree with making New Year 'revolutions.' The idea that we go to sleep as one person and wake up and behave totally differently just because it is the first of January seems silly to me. But I do agree that the start of a new year is a great time to question if you are happy with the direction your life is headed in and how it could be made better."

Whether you are in favour of New Year resolutions, think they are a waste of time, or find yourself somewhere in the middle, knowing how to maximise your success at making positive and enduring changes is invaluable knowledge.

Although it sounds obvious, the first step of successful goal achievement is spending time selecting the right goals. It is vital to identify what you really want to achieve, not just what sounds good or you think you should do. Goals must also be consistent with your values or they will not be sustainable in the long term. A good way to start is by writing a 'dream list', of the elements your ideal life would contain.

One mistake that is commonly made when deciding which goals to target is focusing on one thing without considering how that will impact on the rest of your life. To avoid choosing goals which contradict each other, look at how a potential goal will feed your overall development. Broadly speaking there are six life 'areas' to consider: Family & Home, Spiritual/ Ethical, Social & Cultural, Career and Finances, Physical & Health and Mental & Educational. To prevent a one-sided development, it is important that your goals should work towards improving all of these areas together.

For example, the fact that fitness and weight loss were the most popular New Year resolutions identified by Pitman Training's poll is not surprising. Step into a gym in January and you will feel like the proverbial sardine in a tin. The connection between exercise and losing weight is obvious, but failing to consider other factors such as boredom, stress, or loneliness - which could be the root cause of a poor diet and excess weight – could undermine even the most sincere desire to shed pounds.

In order to sustain focus, it is important not to set too many goals. One suggestion is to select goals that overlap your life 'areas'. Pitman Training's poll uncovered that over 25 % of us put changing career or finding a better job as the top priority this year, which can easily be combined with improving other areas. For example, training for a new career would also fulfil mental and educational development needs. By joining social or networking organisations to advance your career you could improve your social sphere at the same time.

Once you have a clear idea of what you want to achieve, the next step is to figure out how to go about it. Break your goal down into key milestones to be attained, i.e. quarterly, monthly and weekly. It is especially important to consider how much time you need to dedicate toward your goals on a day-to-day basis and set it aside. Above all, don't get so hung up on achieving your goals that you forget to enjoy the process of working toward them!

Finally, seek out an organisation who are experienced at supporting people achieve the goals you have identified. Pitman Training Milton Keynes is an example of a local organisation that provides a complete range of services to help people to develop their career. They have a wide range of options; from short courses to develop a specific skill to full vocational diplomas, which impart all the skills you would need for a new career.

Pitman Training is unique in that 98% of all people who enrol on their courses complete them, and of those who complete 99% pass. One reason for these unparalleled figures is the way in which courses are delivered. The time and pace of training is entirely flexible and set by the individual themselves, with experienced tutors on hand to provide advice and support when it is needed. As the UK's largest training provider they have discovered that offering a wide range of end to end services helps people to stay the course. From free goal setting workshops, support with writing CVs and introductions to organisations looking for people with the skills that they train in, their goal is to help the individual to develop as a whole.

Nicki Lloyd, from Pitman Training Milton Keynes adds that:

"Lack of confidence is one of the main obstacles people face when they are thinking about changing or finding a new job. So many people never fulfil their potential because of their fear of failure," she said.

"Here at Pitman Training Milton Keynes, our goal is to help people overcome any self doubts by making learning not only easy but enjoyable. When people have the right training and skills, they develop the confidence they need to get the job of their dreams."
